

Only a small proportion of Tasmania's aged population will ever enter a residential care facility.

But when your loved one does, you'll be pleased that you are in Tasmania.

Australia and Tasmania have one of the most advanced aged care systems in the world. Aged care in Tasmania includes everything from quality aged care homes through to a wide range of schemes that help older people to live in their own homes and maintain their independence. The variety of aged services ensures quality aged care is available to all older Tasmanians who need it.

ACST members are the service providers who offer aged care in the community and through aged care homes. Our members have been reliably delivering quality services with skill, dedication and compassion for over 100 years.

Love this care.
